

A specimen lunch menu, taken at random, offers roast topside, rolled sirloin, grilled steaks, Yorkshire pudding, roast and creamed potatoes, Brussels sprouts, tinned peas, and sliced carrots. Soup preceded this main dish; while to follow came steamed fruit roll and custard or baked rice and raisin pudding. The trenchermen on our picture are (left to right) Apprentices A. A. Kyte (Smethwick), J. T. Bench (Quinton), and D. M. Smart (Oldbury).

The caption says it's Kyte, Bench & Smart.
But, is it really Smart and not Armes?
Is that James on the right?
